

HairGPTTT

Motivation

An average user arriving on the moxiebeauty.in website (~50,000 sessions daily) is confused by the assortment of products made available to them. This chatbot intends to take an educative stance on the user's haircare journey by understanding the user and their pain points. In doing so, we:

- Want users to buy our products with clear expected outcomes. This should feed into the brand loyalty split, nudging customers from haters to loyalists/indifferent customers (current: 40-20-40)
- expect more customers to convert into buying customers on our website. If the overall conversion funnel for the website improves by 10 basis points, we stand to add 18L (50 orders/day X 30 days X 1200 AOV) in additional revenue all other things held constant.

What defines a customer for Moxie?

A Moxie customer has the following relevant traits for this project:

1. Hair type, there are two approaches to determining a user's hair type.
 - a. Prompt the user with images of different hair types and let them pick the one closest to their actual hair. This is a staged process with first level determining straight, wavy and curly whereas the second stage helps define the texture.
 - b. The user uploads an image and the model analyses the hair type. The picture upload is a friction step but the model is likely to be 20-30% more accurate.
Considering the accuracy and friction trade-offs, we will use option b and have a as the fallback
2. Current haircare routine, defined by:
 - Number of steps
 - Type of products used
 - Frequency of use, and
 - Monthly spend
3. Primary hair concern / Limitations of current routine / Objective:
 - Cleanse: Regular, generic shampoo + conditioner
 - Enhance: Concerns like Frizz, Damage, Scalp
 - Style: Waves, Curls, On the go

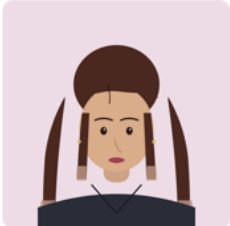

The conversation

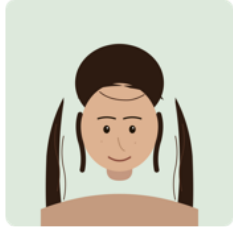

The bot should try and narrow down the above traits of a user with an 80% confidence. The order of this is as shown above. Once these traits are well understood, the bot may:

- Understand what the user is looking for on the website, what they expect from Moxie

- Build a cart for the user or answer other exploratory haircare concerns
